FABRIQUÉ EN FRANCE

The beehive does not compromise

Since 1979, Propolia® has been sharing its extensive knowledge of bee products and their benefits for your wellbeing. As French specialists in the transformation of Propolis, we have always been aiming to provide you with the best of natural products.

At a time when the promotion of Propolis, Honey and Royal Jelly has, for some brands, become a mere marketing device, we at Propolia®, as we have been for the past 40 years, continue the search for new ways to share the benefits of these exceptional substances. Our team of researchers, in tandem with our partners, are working every day to celebrate the extraordinary work of the humble bee as we combine the properties of vegetable and beehive products.

ACTIVE PRODUCTS WHICH ARE NATURALLY ACTIVE

The opportunities that the beehive and nature offer are endless and we commit ourselves to offering you all their limitless benefits. We can't imagine our mission as anything other than following this course of action.

We think of our customers as more than just consumers. And for this reason we take responsibility for the overall quality of our products.

Accordingly, our range of products continues to evolve towards formulations which are certified organic while at the same time not compromising on the ingredients' richness, nor the fineness of their textures and scents. We don't compromise.

The Sud de France or "South of France" label certifies a selection of our products within the range. It ensures not only the products' local origin, quality and natural formulation but also our commitment in terms of sustainable development.

EcoCert France SAS is the reference for Certification of organic Products in France. Propolia® systematically uses their services as part of the certification for our organic products.

Our certified organic food products benefit from the European label, which provides you with the guarantee that the products containing agricultural ingredients come from at least 95% of the organic production process.

Our values and course of action

COMMITTED

As a partner of French beekeepers and a member of the UNAF (National Union of French Apiculture), we have always been and continue to be committed to supporting French beekeeping. Originally professional beekeepers, we have always been passionate about the activities of bees and passionately believe in the extraordinary properties of bee products. We integrate them, and always will, into all of our formulations.

SUSTAINABLE

Aware of the realities that affect us all today, we develop our business within a sustainable framework: we purchase most of our raw material from French suppliers, so limiting our transport and carbon footprint and at the same time encouraging the local economy and local jobs.

NATURE

Devoted champions of natural products – our formulas have never contained any harmful substances such as parabens, phenoxyethanol, synthetic colours etc. Our 'certified organic' products are accredited by an approved body and so are entitled to carry labels such as 'EcoCert', 'Cosmebio', 'Ecosoin' or 'Agriculture Biologique' (Organic Farming).

This shows APIMAB's and its brand, Propolia's®, commitment to developing its activities as part of responsible, safe and sustainable farming.

Charter dedicated to cosmetics, the Cosmebio label guarantees that the formulations with vegetable ingredients come from at least 95% of organic farming and with limited use of non-organic ingredients.

COSMOS NATURAL

COSMOS ORGANIC

Its values are very close to those of Cosmebio but are even more rigorous regarding the accessibility criteria. The charter Cosmos Organic and Cosmos Natural come from the harmonisation of the different charters existing at the European level. This charter concerns all cosmetic products labelled and put on the market after 1st January 2017.

Ecosoin is the new natural and organic label launched by EcoCert for animal care products. With 4 products already labelled in the pet range, Propolia® is one of the first in France to apply it to these kind of products!

The laboratory

A story with strong roots...

Apimab Laboratoires were born in Clermont l'Hérault, in the hills shaped by the Mediterranean climate. In 1975, close to Salagou Lake, beekeeper Marc-Alain Bernard, set his first beehives, determined to share his passion for bees through their best known and sweetest product - honey.

Step by step, curious about what the hardworking little insect can deliver, he focussed on a material which until that stage had been considered as a «waste» product of the hive, namely “propolis”.

After considerable work, research and experimentation, he managed to develop complex processes of purification and transformation of the propolis to extract all its properties and so the first harvest of propolis was achieved, precursor to the vast majority of the company's current range of products.

Today Apimab has over 25 employees, all committed to the bee and convinced of the benefits of propolis, a conviction doubtless passed on by Marc-Alain Bernard.

A passion born of the bee...

The world of the bee is a fascinating world.

Over the years, my job as a beekeeper allowed me to discover many bee-derived products and their little-known properties.

Through the “Miellerie du Salagou” (Honey farm), a place to discover the unusual beekeeping business, I was able to share all these benefits with a wider circle, mostly made up of our loyal customers.

Apimab Laboratories was created over 40 years ago and represents my passion for bees and nature in general - a passion that led me to become specialised in the transformational processes of propolis for food supplements and cosmetics manufacturing.

Propolia®, my precious trademark, was the first to represent our all round know-how of such a complex and unusual material as propolis. From a single product in 1979 (Honey-Liquorice Propolis Pastilles), the company's product range now has more than 100 products. We are very proud of the quality of the selected propolis which is of an exceptional purity.

Choosing Propolia® products is choosing a unique expertise in France, guaranteeing consistency, potency and efficacy of our products - the satisfaction of our customers is the proof of our reliability.

What is Propolis?

Propolis is a mix of resinous, mastic and balsamic substances collected by bees from the buds of certain plants and trees, e.g. from poplars (especially in the French Propolis).

Propolis, which means in Greek “in front of the city”, is used to block entrances or fill gaps in the hive as a natural barrier in order to protect the colony against predators and microbiological attack.

Propolis contains a multitude of active substances, among them flavonoids, phenolic acids, aromatic acids and numerous trace elements that make it a unique substance found in nature.

In recent years, scientific research has focused on Propolis and highlighted its significant potential importance for human wellbeing – it is naturally unique.

Nicely amber coloured (a reddish brown) and with a viscous consistency, bees alter the composition of the resin harvested by adding secretions and wax.

Containing other impurities due to beekeeping activities and the bees themselves (wood particles, dead bees, pollen, sand...), Propolis needs to be purified before use.

A number of foraging bees specialise in this difficult work. They collect the resin out of the buds with their tongue, mandibles and back legs. The bees then return to the hive where these big drops are deposited for various uses: to varnish the walls of the hive, to repair and sterilise cells or to coat and embalm foreign bodies – all of which ensure the sanitisation of the hive.

The beekeeper removes Propolis from the hive without harming the colony:

- by annually scraping the frames of the hives
- by retrieving the Propolis from the traps specifically set for the bees to deposit these essential resins.

Putting the trap in the freezer allows collection of the resin which has subsequently become brittle.

The quantity of Propolis harvested depends on the surrounding vegetation and breed of bee, “Caucasian” bee being the most fruitful type.

On average between 100g and 300g per hive per year is harvested. This shows how rare and precious a substance Propolis is.

Propolis

The combination of plant and animal origins

The benefits of Royal Jelly, Honey, Pollen or Beeswax on your wellbeing are already well known. Also to be discovered is that the beehive contains another treasure, not recognised until the last few years. It has become a reliable solution to achieving natural well-being all year round - Propolis.

Propolis fizzes

Many products containing Propolis as active ingredient are available on the market (including throat care products). They may be very light in flavour. If this is the case, do not think that this softness comes from Propolis – in fact, it may come from the very lack of it as a sign of good efficient Propolis is fizzing in the mouth – it's the proof of its action.

Propolis smells good

We sometimes hear the criticism that Propolis doesn't smell nice but it's the smell of the hive, the imprint of nature, a balsamic scent with sweet notes, reminiscent of coniferous forests and vanilla and hyacinth fragrance – a true product of nature!

Propolis is colorful

As a resin, Propolis is, by nature, very colourful: Brown, Red, Green... These natural colours come from the plants of origin. Despite the purification process, an extract of propolis keeps its colour! It is entirely normal for a product containing propolis to have a colour and not be white or transparent. The different Propolis used in the Propolia® products are brown: a colour that shows the great diversity of plant origins.

Becoming organic : a foregone conclusion for Propolia

As champions of bees and beekeeping, we are naturally and as far as possible committed to the supply of organic raw materials.

This commitment is dictated by a simple observation: bees are in danger. We firmly believe that by encouraging the development of healthier farming methods, we will gradually succeed in creating ecosystems that are more favourable to the development of beekeeping in France and Europe.

Best Organic Product : springboard & discoveries

It will not have escaped the many of you that we here in Propolia have always worked hard to formulate healthy, effective and pleasant products. Over the last few years, with the re-branding of PROPOLIA, many of our formulations have evolved towards being organic and the organic certification is one of the criteria for our new products development.

For this reason and to confirm our commitment to the organic approach, we have submitted over the past five years some of the PROPOLIA products for consumer approval. We focussed on one special competition in particular which has now become essential in France for certified organic products: Best Organic Products of the Year.

The Best Organic Products Award, what is it?

Organised by the Bio à la Une website, this honour rewards products of various categories: food, well-being and domestic hygiene. The products presented by the brands must be certified organic according to an approved label (AB, Cosmebio, Nature & Progress...) to have the right to compete. For each product competing, 100 testers evaluate the products according to different criteria such as product effectiveness, odour, texture and packaging. If the product obtains on average a score greater than 16/20, then it receives the award.

Since 2015 our brand has had the honour of seeing 9 of our products receive the award. We thank our consumers for those awards from our heart, from the entire Propolia team!

Thank you!

Well-being

Apart from our propolis, the success of Propolia's formulations comes from a choice of ingredients adapted to suit each need, always chosen for their quality and their action when combined with the other elements of the formulations. Here is a small selection:

Our choice ingredients

1. HONEY

Renowned for its nutritional qualities and often containing some part of the plant of origin, the honey is the base for many of Propolia's® products. Its fructose content, along with its synergetic effect with the other beehive products, makes it a great catalyst when combined with other natural ingredients.

3. POLLEN

Of plant origin but nonetheless considered as a beehive product, Pollen provides proteins and vitamins and is therefore an ingredient of choice for Propolia® products.

2. ROYAL JELLY

Described by many as "the caviar of the hive" Royal Jelly is frequently consumed in its purest form. Propolia® gives it a significant role in their food supplement formulations to deliver a better potency and absorption.

4. THYME

The quintessential Southern plant, Thyme is loved by bees for its aromatic nectar and prized by the Propolia® team for its wide range of applications, from wellbeing to skin care products.

5. EUCALYPTUS

More common to other climates, Eucalyptus is notable for the very strong, fresh smell that we love to inhale deeply. An ingredient that fits well beside Propolis!

6. PINE

In the South a tree associated with the song of cicadas. Its sap and essential oils combine perfectly with Honey and Propolis to act together on the throat and breathing.

7. GINSENG

The famous "Panax ginseng" ("Panax" means "panacea" in Latin), a name conveying the multi-advantageous nature of this root. It is an essential base of traditional Asian health care products.

COMING SOON...

Other products from the Intense Propolis line are coming soon as an organic version !

French propolis : a scarce commodity

Since its beginnings, Propolia® has been working closely with French beekeepers to obtain a quality Propolis. Naturally we owe this quality to our consumers who above all require healthy products, good for their well-being and concentrated in active ingredients.

Thus Propolia® products have always striven to offer formulations highly concentrated in Propolis. We do not compromise when it comes to guarantee of quality and potency. But, this Propolis concentration requires the use of almost 10 tons of extracts per year manufactured in our laboratories.

Despite all the efforts of our beekeeping partners and our daily commitment, the situation with French beekeeping has become a real concern: varroa, Asian hornet, colony collapse phenomena, endocrine disruptors, anomalies in our modern climate... Our little Bees are encountering increasing difficulty to ensure their own survival. On top of this, the evermore restrictive European regulations make it difficult for Propolia® to rely only on a 100% French Propolis supply, especially an organic Propolis. This is of course to be regretted.

In order to ensure the same quality level and high concentration in active ingredients which make up the potency of our products, we have expanded the scope of supply to new beekeeping partners in Europe without sacrificing the organoleptic characteristics of the Propolis: always rich, always qualitative. This step is in line with our desire to harmonise our different propolis batches, which have diverse and synergistic plant origins.

However we would never give up on our French beekeeping partners, so we maintain a large part of French Propolis in our product range. Simultaneously we work together with them on a daily basis to achieve more sustainable production processes in the light of these new challenges, in close collaboration with the UNAF (French beekeeping association).

In the hope that better days will come, Propolia® continues to evolve while keeping in mind that which motivates us every day - our customers' well-being !

Honey

Délicat Essaim®

The sweet nectar made by our beloved foraging bees that we know as Honey is probably the most familiar and the most representative produce of the Beehive in the collective consciousness. Yet, one of its primary characteristics is the wide varieties it comes in.

Liquid, creamy, crystallised, fruity, woody, organic - so many words that can describe these honeys according to their floral or geographical origin. Using terms similar to those used by oenologists in describing types of wine, we introduce the idea of tasting honey: «Mélologie».

So that you can discover unique flavours and the best quality of honey, Propolia® more often than not works in small volumes because honey is a seasonal product and its abundance is increasingly limited by climatic issues. So, in order to promote more sustainable beekeeping, we have chosen variety over quantity which means more discoveries and unexpected pleasures for you! So don't forget to check our website for the latest arrivals!

SOON...

New Apis Sanctum® products should be here soon...

Keep in touch !

Apis Sanctum® : at the heart of the beehive

Among all the products of the hive, Royal Jelly is undoubtedly the most mysterious one...

Produced by the nurse bees, it is the most elaborate substance of the hive and the key to the development of the entire colony. Without it a bee cannot naturally become Queen. In a way the queen is a kind of super-bee. Thanks to a prolonged consumption of royal jelly (compared to ordinary worker bees) her body is transformed to become more massive and capable of reproduction.

At the origin of this transformation, biological mechanisms are activated by the components of royal jelly (including, most probably, the famous 10-HDA, a fatty acid specific to royal jelly), mechanisms which have been the subject of many scientific questions until recently.

Why « Apis Sanctum » ?

Due to its rare and precious characteristic for the Hive, royal jelly is a product of vital importance. In addition to its daily nutritional importance for the queen, it is also the guarantor of the colony's future! Preserved for the brood and for the queen, it is a sacred treasure for the bee, preciously buried in the heart of the hive, this sanctuary, this «Apis Sanctum».

For Propolia®, this range is intended to be an equivalent to the «Intense Propolis» range: a range of products close to the original material; little processed, guaranteeing a good concentration in royal jelly and its quality!

"SLS-Free, ALS-Free" ??? Sorry, what is this language?

You may have already read on our body hygiene and hair products this statement «without sulphate surfactant» or «without SLS or ALS». Do these expressions sound a little obscure to you? Don't panic, we can explain everything.

Behind these two acronyms SLS (Sodium Lauryl- or Laureth-Sulphate) and ALS (Ammonium Lauryl Sulphate) hide simply two of the foaming components most regularly used in the cosmetic industry. These two components contribute to the formation, density and abundance of foam. These compounds are called «surfactants» and their presence in the product formulation is necessary to obtain foam.

Here is the issue: ALS and SLS are potentially allergenic surfactants and can be irritating. As they are omnipresent in everyday foaming products, we have all been in contact with them throughout our lives and as everyone knows, the more you are in contact with an allergenic substance, the more you increase the risk of triggering an allergic reaction to it. You should not worry: it is not absolutely necessary to use ALS or SLS to obtain foam, because there are many other surfactants.

Propolia®'s foaming products are as gentle as possible, as we use a combination of several natural surfactants in small quantities which limits the risk for allergic reaction and ensures a good quality foam. Yes, even in organic products this is possible!

Transition period for hair moving to organic

Hair products with silicones are found far too often in the bathroom: they are used to give a nice appearance to the hair (gloss, detangling or softness) and have become the routine product for many people. Added to the negative impact of silicones (and / or quaternary ammonium cations) on the ecology is the fact that they give a very artificial appearance to the hair.

The silicones coat and cover the hair, which "suffocates" it under an impenetrable layer. This artificial layer hides the true condition of the hair.

After years of using conventional products we no longer know what the hair looks like without silicones. Therefore the transition period to natural hair care can sometimes be a little difficult.

What happens during the transition period to organic ? During the transition period, the silicones layers are gradually removed and the real hair condition becomes apparent as dry, brittle or dull. It takes some time for the hair to regain its vitality and natural lustre and during this time might wonder if the use of natural products does do any good to the hair.

So don't be too quick to judge your new organic products ! The condition of the hair observed during the transition period is not caused by the use of healthier products but by the extended use of products that have "camouflaged" without repairing. Actually it takes sometimes up to a few weeks of taking care of the hair with natural products before seeing positive results and this is quite normal. In some cases it may even be necessary to do a haircut as the hair may be too damaged. Even if switching to natural products is a healthier choice for the hair, it takes time to work its magic.

What about the lack of foam?

In conventional products sulphated surfactants abound and they allow the formation of a large amount of foam. Foam represents the proof of an effective cleansing, at least according to the collective imagination. «The more it foams, the better my shampoo cleans». Even if it is wrong!

The problem is that the abundance of foam added to the potential irritating surfactants makes the scalp react. As a defensive reflex, it will naturally tend to get greasy even faster. So the user will increase the frequency of shampooing which will increase the irritation of the scalp. And so it continues.

Propolia® does not use any silicone or quaternary ammonium cation, or sulphated surfactant in its products.

30 min

- Cuticle nipper
- Nail file
- Nail cutter
- Bowl

It's Sunday, it's a gloomy day and you're planning to do your nails while watching the last episode of your favorite show? We suggest that you give some love to your hands, and follow these few easy steps to relax them.

Clean your hands. Of course we suggest using a liquid Propolia® soap 😊. Dry them well.

A drop of fortifying nail oil would be wanted? Consider using castor oil or sweet almond oil! Soak all this for a few minutes in warm water and dry.

Cut your desires (the small bits of skin around the corners of your nails) and push back your cuticles. (This is the n°2 glamour instant.)

Apply the aforesaid beautiful varnish and make the most of your Netflix & chill afternoon!

Apply the solvent to your nails and then cut and file (if necessary). (This is the n°1 glamour instant.)

Take a small amount of Propolia® Hand Cream (emphasis added) and apply it to each hand, gently massaging the palm, fingers and their phalanges.

Choose the varnish color you want to apply... the trend is towards Nude but if you want to apply a beautiful Magenta to be in tune with Propolia® colors... we can't blame you.

Our little thing
For your nails, Propolia has also thought about the well-being of the inside. Find out more about our Hair and Nail Capsules on page 50!

As you use our products on a daily basis, you are in the best position to assess their evolution, ergonomics, weaknesses etc. Our role as a manufacturer is not only to offer you products but it is also to offer you better products.

This requires the active participation of our clients in the development of some of our products: from the expression of a need to the validation of a perfume, taste, or texture. For these products, you are the judges of our creations before they are launched on the market.

Therefore if you receive one of our e-mails looking to find volunteers to test new products, please don't just put it in the trash. Rather see it as an opportunity to be involved in the process of creation of products that
